Art Unit: 1651

1. Receipt is acknowledged of the response to the first office action filed August 08, 2002.

2. Claims 1-39 are pending in this application.

3. The prior office action has been withdrawn in view of the original election of invention. Applicant had elected Group I claims 1-24, which were not acted upon in the first office action.

4. In view of the election drawn to Group I, Claims 1-24, this Examiner has found that the search and examination for the claims has been extremely unduly burdensome. There is a further restriction as well as election of species in accordance with U.S. and PCT rules based on the claimed inventions which is as follows:

Restriction is required under 35 U.S.C. 121 and 372.

This application contains the following inventions or groups of inventions, which are not so linked as to form a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1.

In accordance with 37 CFR 1.499, applicant is required, in reply to this action, to elect a single invention to which the claims must be restricted.

Group A, claim(s) 1-17, drawn to a food supplement.

Group B, claim(s) 18-24, drawn to a food product containing the food supplement.

Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art as shown by their different classification, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

Inventions I and II are related as mutually exclusive species in an intermediate-final product relationship. Distinctness is proven for claims in this relationship if the intermediate product is useful to make other than the final product (MPEP § 806.04(b), 3rd paragraph), and the species are patentably distinct (MPEP § 806.04(h)). In the instant case, the intermediate product is deemed to be useful as a supplement per se without any additional ingredient and the inventions are deemed patentably distinct since there is nothing on this record to show them to be obvious variants. Should applicant traverse on the ground that the species are not patentably distinct, applicant should submit evidence or identify such evidence now of record showing the species to be obvious variants or clearly admit on the record that this is the case. In either instance, if the examiner finds one of the inventions anticipated by the prior art, the evidence or admission may be used in a rejection under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) of the other invention.

It is also noted that the specification teaches that the supplement when added to a food product, e.g., a cereal, essentially changes the conditions for the composition under consideration whereby the composition contains soluble fibers in addition to the insoluble fibers. In this case, the intermediate product, which may be patentable, but the final composition, the cereal, containing any amount of fibers would render the food product unpatentable. Thus, the structural integrity of the supplement has been changed.

Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and the search required for Group I-classified in Class 424 is not required for Group II, which is in the food art, Class 426, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art because of their recognized divergent subject matter, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art because of their recognized divergent subject matter, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

5. This application contains claims directed to the following patentably distinct species of the claimed invention:

- A. Whereby the food supplement is selected from
 - I. First type selected from the group consisting of
 - i. Citrus
 - ii. tomato
 - iii. carrot
 - iv. mango
 - v. papaya
 - vi. banana
 - vii. pineapple

viii. kiwi fruit

ix. spinach.

II. Second type from the group:

w. melon

x. grape

y. apple

z. cranberry.

B. Whereby the food product is

a. breakfast cereal

b. granola bar

c. soup

d. beverage.

Applicant is required under 35 U.S.C. 121 to elect a single disclosed species for prosecution on the merits to which the claims shall be restricted if no generic claim is finally held to be allowable. Currently, claim 1 is generic.

Applicant is advised that a reply to this requirement must include an identification of the species that is elected consonant with this requirement, and a listing of all claims readable thereon, including any claims subsequently added. An argument that a claim is allowable or that all claims are generic is considered nonresponsive unless accompanied by an election.

Upon the allowance of a generic claim, applicant will be entitled to consideration of claims to additional species which are written in dependent form or otherwise include all the limitations of an allowed generic claim as provided by 37 CFR 1.141. If claims are added after the election, applicant must indicate which are readable upon the elected species. MPEP § 809.02(a).

Should applicant traverse on the ground that the species are not patentably distinct, applicant should submit evidence or identify such evidence now of record showing the species to be obvious variants or clearly admit on the record that this is the case. In either instance, if the examiner finds one of the inventions unpatentable over the prior art, the evidence or admission may be used in a rejection under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) of the other invention.
